CONCURRENT SESSIONS (131-136)

131 Reactive Oxygen Species: Making the Connection Between Research and Patient Care – 1.25 CH

Barbara Odom, BSN, RN, CDN

This session will focus on reactive oxygen species (ROS), current research related to acute and chronic kidney disease, and how nephrology nurses can use this knowledge to improve patient outcomes.

132 Survival of the Fittest: Peritoneal Dialysis Selection and Guidelines for Management – 1.25 CH

Joanne Bargman, MD

Who is a candidate for peritoneal dialysis (PD)? Learn more about the selection criteria for PD, how to determine the appropriate PD prescription, and barriers that may prevent adequate PD.

133 The Failing Transplant: Preparing for Dialysis Therapy – 1.25 CH

Holly Garner, MSN, APRN, FNP-C

How is the transition to dialysis managed if a kidney transplant fails? This session will address the impact of dialysis modality on survival, the care pathway interventions for dialysis preparation, and recommendations for outpatient surveillance.

134 Reaching Out to Patients: The Potential of Telehealth – 1.25 CH

Mitchell Rosner, MD, MACP

This session will explore how telehealth can enhance health care delivery for CKD patients in rural areas, including innovative programs that leverage information technology such as smartphones and computers.

135 Blending Differences in Leadership Skills: Volunteer and Workplace Leadership – 1.25 CH

Mary Schira, PhD, RN, ACNP-BC

Cindy Richards, BSN, RN, CNN

Work-based leadership skills provide a foundation for leading in a volunteer organization, but are the approaches and skills the same? Explore the differences of leadership in a volunteer organization versus the workplace and strategies for success.

136 Technology - Novice - 1.25 CH

Celess Tyrell

As an ANNA leader, there are many online tools that can make your volunteer job easier. Review the basics of the tools you will need to use most: ANNA Connected, social media for your chapter, Doodle, Dropbox, and if time allows, perhaps a few more.

*Sessions 135 and 136 are designed for ANNA volunteer leaders but open to all.

Symposium Schedule

Tracy Anderson-Haag, PharmD, BCPS

Immunosuppressive medications are prescribed routinely for patients with CKD. Medication uses (and potential side effects) for patients on dialysis, patients who have had a transplant, or patients with other disease processes will be covered in this informative session.

232 From Idea to Article: Writing for Publication Workshop – 1.25 CH

Beth Ulrich, EdD, RN, FACHE, FAAN

This session will review manuscript development and publication processes and help participants create a plan for writing a manuscript for publication.

233 Applying Patient Engagement Strategies to Achieve Patient-Centered Care – 1.25 CH

Carolyn Latham, DNP, MBA, MSN, RN, CNN

This session will focus on the differences between patient-centered care and patient and family engagement in care. Evidence for the importance of engaging both patients and families in care and tips for success also will be shared.

234 Low-Protein Diet for CKD Patients – 1.25 CH

Giuliano Brunori, MD

This session will outline nutritional goals for patients with CKD and discuss the impact of various protein allowances in the progression of CKD.

Symposium Schedule

3:15 pm - 4:30 pm

CONCURRENT SESSIONS (241-245)

241 ABCs of Staff Infection Control Education and Competency Development from Assessment to Simulation – 1.25 CH

*Nicole Gualandi, MS/MPH, RN, CIC
Stephanie Booth, BSHCA, CCHT-A*

Experience practical infection control education and learning methodologies using a variety of teaching techniques and simulation to perform catheter care/connection/disconnection, AVF/AVG access, patient role/advocacy, and CDC audit tool use.

Offered in collaboration with the American Nurses Association and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

242 Collaborative Care for Depression in Patients with Kidney Disease – 1.25 CH

Rita Haverkamp, MSN, RN, PHMCNS-BC

Depression is common in patients with chronic disease. This session will review evidence-based treatments for depression, benefits of collaborative care, and Medicare billing codes for collaborative care.

243 For the Nurse, By the Nurse: Innovative Dialysis Staffing Model – 1.25 CH

*Nenita Cuellar, BSN, RN, CNN
Stephanie Huckaby, MSN, REA-BC*

This session will address the challenge of dialysis unit staffing by examining how to engage nurses in the process and the benefits of interprofessional collaboration. The use of schedule pilots as a way to improve employee engagement and satisfaction will be discussed.

244 The ABCs of Presenting at a Conference: From Writing an Abstract to Presentation – 1.25 CH

*Kim Schafer Astroth, PhD, RN
Debra Hain, PhD, APRN, ANP-BC, GNP-BC, FAANP*

Have you wanted to speak at a conference, but felt overwhelmed about writing an abstract for submission or compiling your presentation? Get tips for preparing an abstract and a conference presentation from the experts.

245 Immunization Recommendations for Pediatric Patients with CKD, Nephrotic Syndrome, and Renal Transplant: A Literature Review and Quality Improvement Project – 1.25 CH, 1.0 Rx

Jacqueline Costello, DNP, MSN Ed, APRN, CPNP-PC

Does a chronic illness in childhood change the recommended immunization schedule? Learn about immunization recommendations for pediatric patients with CKD, nephrotic syndrome, and renal transplant as well as the importance of continued follow up and evaluation for these children.
